August 7.

When Mother Eve the tempting fruit, Frucked for her only kin, She then and there did tostitute A precedent for Sin. She knew the apple tasted sweet, But thought not of its price,

And said to adam: "Let us ent: It's naughty, but his nice." And so it's been for ages, down Until this very day, That all manking, black, white or brown

Are prone to go astray. And still the lesson will not learn, To profit from advice, Their simple hearts will ever yearn For 'naughty things, it nice.'

The gentle babe, with cooling voice, The youth of tender age, Will often take the wrong from choic As will the learned sage; The wrong forever lends the van-We use it as a sples

To season all the good we can; * Tis naughty, but 'tis nice.'

Our politicians of abuse The cause most just and right; And all their actions do excuso With speeches, long and trite. And from the public roaf they steal. Like hungry, thisving mice, Whilst in their guilty souls they feel "Tis naughty, but 'tis alee."

The clergy, too, it comes about, Armed with their laws and creeds, Oft from the pulpit preach and spout More than they not by deeds; And if to them it should occur That Satan's dread device Had made them err, they would infer "Twas maughty, but "Iwas nice.

And sober men, and women, too, I must in truth proclaim, Are glad to hide some things they do By substituting names; But sober folks we must excuse If not too deep in vice, Although at times they do confuse The 'naughty with the nice.'

And so 't will be for ages hence, Mankind will seek their level; Some will go up, some on the fence And others to the Devil. But every one, I'm bound to think, Regardless of the price Of worldly things, will cut and drink . The naughty with the sice.
